

Sample Short Answer Question

List the main differences in the design and conduct of a First-in-Human study performed with a new chemical entity (small molecule) and a monoclonal antibody both intended for treatment of patients with rheumatoid arthritis.

20 marks